

TAUNTON'S

FineHomebuilding.com

The most trusted building information online

Print

Close

Primer to go

EndCuts sealer

by Mike Guertin

To help prevent rot, I've been keeping a gallon of primer next to my saw and coating the cut ends of exterior wood trim and siding for more than a dozen years. This task is faster, easier, and less messy with a new product called EndCuts.

From Fine Homebuilding 196, pp. 38
May 14, 2008

Start your FREE trial to View this Article

Become a member today!

(Already a Member? Login Here)

Not a member yet?

Join finehomebuilding.com risk-free for 14 days.

Enjoy instant, 24/7 access to inspirational, practical and reliable information on homebuilding, remodeling and design.

Online membership includes:

- ▶ 1,450 in-depth articles and answers from pros
- ▶ 1,300 editor-illustrated and field-tested reader tips
- ▶ 50 how-to videos, available on demand
- ▶ Online discussion forums and blogs
- ▶ Time-saving, drill-down search feature

Start your FREE TRIAL today.

Related Topics: Painting and Finishing | Exterior Painting and Finishing | Exterior Trim | Siding | Paints and Finishes | Exterior Paints, Stains, and Finishes | Caulks and Sealants

Related Articles

Bio-based wood sealer

Soyguard
by Justin Fink

Q & A: Using old oil paint as primer M

by Victor DeMasi

There's No Escaping the Scraping M

Washing, scraping, sanding, patching, and priming are dirty, difficult jobs that can make exterior paint last twice as long
by Hugh Schreiber

Q & A: Black mildew on fresh paint M

by Paul Fiset

Q & A: Painting aluminum siding M

by Brian J. Doherty

Copyright© 2007 The Taunton Press

Print

Close